

2010 Chicago Colloquium on Digital Humanities & Computer Science

November 21-22
the Hilton Orrington Hotel
1710 Orrington Ave
Evanston, Illinois

2010

DHCS

Colloquium on Digital Humanities

Computer Science

CHICAGO COLLOQUIUM
ON DIGITAL HUMANITIES
AND COMPUTER SCIENCE

Querying Text and Image Archives for Collaborative Scholarship

um on Digital Humanities and
Computer Science
WHAT TO DO WITH A MILLION BOOKS

Digital Humanities & Computer Science Colloquium
Sunday, November 21, 2010
Hilton Orrington Hotel

Time	Grand Ballroom	Heritage Ballroom
9:00 am ↓	Welcome Sarah Pritchard , Northwestern's University Librarian
9:15 am ↓	Timothy Cole The Open Annotation Collaboration: Towards a Shared, Interoperable Data Model of Scholarly Annotation	Quinn Dombrowski A 'Wikipedia model' for modernizing scholarly reference
9:45 am ↓	Andrew Ashton Annotating digital texts in the Brown University Library	Peter Organisciak Why Bother? Examining the Motivations of Users in Large-Scale Crowd-Powered Online Initiatives
10:15 am ↓	Doug Reside Linking Images of Text to Transcriptions	Benjamin Pauley The Bibliography of Surrogacy: Identifying Early Modern Books at Google Books
10:45 am	North Shore Room Coffee and Poster sessions
11:15 am ↓	E-science, Digital Humanities, and the Role of the Library a panel discussion with Susan Brown (Guelph, U. Alberta), Patrick Harms (Göttingen), Elli Mylonas (Brown), Claire Stewart (Northwestern), Katherine Walter (Nebraska).	Russell Horton : Sequence Alignment and Similarity in Biology and the Humanities
11:45 am ↓		Brian Tingle and Jonathan Smith : Crossing Boundaries: Simplifying Work Across Digital Collections With a Virtual Repository
12:15 pm	North Shore Room Lunch break and poster sessions
2:00 pm ↓	Will Thomas and Doug Downey : Digging into Railroads	Colin Wilder : The Hessian Social Network Project: Analysis of Social Networks and Textual Citations among Legal Operators in the German Enlightenment
2:30 pm ↓	Joseph Wicentowski : TEI and XML servers at the State Department	Joanna Guldi : The city made of words: text mining the spaces of subaltern agency in Britain, 1848-1919
3:00 pm ↓	Susan Whitfield and Harlan Wallach : Along the Silk Road: Towards a topic based worldwide virtual image repository	Jean Bauer : Do You See What I See?: Technical Documentation in Digital Humanities
3:30 pm	North Shore Room Coffee and poster sessions
4:00 pm ↓	Grand Ballroom Plenary Session
	Jon Orwant (Google): More Stuff and more things to do with it. A talk with responses by Neil Fraistat (Maryland), Sarah Pritchard (Northwestern), and Jeremy York (Michigan)
5:15 pm	North Shore Room Cash bar

Monday, November 22

Time	Grand Ballroom	Heritage Ballroom
8:30 am	North Shore Room Coffee
9:00 am ↓	Ron Zacharski : Language Preservation: A case study in collecting and digitizing machine-tractable language data	Marie Luce Demonet : Text retrieval for the BVH Project (Virtual Humanistic Libraries in Tours): OCR and text processing
9:30 am ↓	Jeff Rydberg-Cox : Social Networks and the Language of Greek Tragedy	Mark Sweetnam : Natural Language Processing and Early Modern Dirty Data – Applying IBM LanguageWare to the 1641 Depositions Corpus
10:00 am ↓	Stuart Moulthrop : Canon, Wiki, Kernel	Brian Pytlik Zillig : TEI Texts that Play Nicely: Lessons of the MONK Project
10:30 am	North Shore Room Coffee and Poster sessions
11:00 am ↓ 12:30 pm	Grand Ballroom Corpus query tools a panel discussion about: ANNIS (Amir Zeldes , Humboldt University, Berlin) the IMS Open Corpus Workbench (Andrew Hardie , Lancaster) the Morphosyntactic Annotation Framework (Laurent Romary , INRIA) Philologic (Mark Olsen , U. Chicago) XAIRA (Lou Burnard)	